EMAIL 1 — PROBLEM IDENTIFICATION

Strategic Rationale

Goal: Create pattern interruption and surface a pain point the prospect already feels but hasn't articulated. Do NOT pitch. Do NOT ask for a meeting. Plant a seed of curiosity. Response trigger: prospect recognizes their own problem and replies to confirm or ask more.

Subject Line Options (A/B Test These)

1. Quick question about your [LOCATION] territory coverage
2. How are your [INDUSTRY] reps dividing up turf right now?
3. [COMPANY_NAME] – are your reps knocking the same doors twice?
4. The hidden cost of paper knock logs in [INDUSTRY]
5. [FIRST_NAME] – territory overlap question

Recommended: Subject lines 1 and 3 perform best for owner/founder personas. Subject line 4 works well for VP Sales / Director of Field Ops.

EMAIL BODY:

Hi [FIRST_NAME],
[ICEBREAKER]

Quick question — when your [INDUSTRY] reps finish a day in the field, how do you know which doors got knocked, which ones are hot leads, and which territories are being doubled up?

Most [REP_COUNT]-rep teams I talk to are still piecing it together from paper logs, group texts, or spreadsheets — and by the time the data lands, half of it's gone.

Is that something you're running into at [COMPANY_NAME]?

Word count:~85 wordsTone:Conversational, peer-to-peer, zero pitchCTA type:Soft curiosity question — invites a yes/no replyExpected response triggers:Prospect recognizes the pain ("yeah, that's exactly our problem"), or pushes back ("we have a system") — both are valuable replies

EMAIL 2 — AGITATION & SOCIAL PROOF

Strategic Rationale

Goal: Quantify the cost of the problem. Make the status quo feel expensive and risky. Introduce FirstKnock by name with a proof point — but keep it brief. Response trigger: prospect feels urgency and wants to know if this applies to them specifically.

Send timing:3 business days after Email 1 (no reply)

Subject Line Options

1. Re: territory coverage at [COMPANY_NAME] (reply thread — recommended)
2. What territory overlap is actually costing [COMPANY_NAME]
3. [FIRST_NAME] — the math on windshield time waste
4. 30% less drive time. Here's how [INDUSTRY] teams are doing it.

Recommended:Use reply-thread subject (option 1) for continuity. Switch to option 4 if starting a fresh thread.

EMAIL BODY:

Hi [FIRST_NAME],

Following up — but wanted to share something relevant first.

Teams running [REP_COUNT]+ door-to-door reps without territory mapping software typically lose 2–4 hours per rep per week to windshield time waste and duplicate knocking. At $25/hour fully-loaded, that's $3,000–$6,000/month in pure waste — before you factor in rep frustration and turnover.

There's also a compliance angle: several [LOCATION]-area municipalities now require canvassing permits and knock logs. Paper records don't hold up.

Teams using FirstKnock's GPS territory balancing see a 30% reduction in drive time and zero territory overlap disputes.

Is this a problem you're actively dealing with at [COMPANY_NAME]?

Word count:~105 wordsTone:Data-driven, empathetic, not pushyKey proof points used:30% drive time reduction, $3K–$6K/month waste calculation, compliance riskCTA type:Direct qualifying question — “Is this a problem you’re dealing with?”Expected response triggers:Prospect confirms pain, asks about pricing, or asks for more info

VA/AI Agent Note:Customize the compliance sentence by researching whether [LOCATION] has active canvassing ordinance enforcement. Cities like Las Vegas, NV; Frisco, TX; and many California municipalities have strict permit requirements. If confirmed, make this sentence more specific.

EMAIL 3 — SOLUTION & CLEAR CTA

Strategic Rationale

Goal: Position FirstKnock as the obvious, low-risk solution. Create mild urgency. Make the next step frictionless (15-min demo, not a sales call). Response trigger: prospect books demo or asks a qualifying question about fit/pricing.

Send timing:4 business days after Email 2 (no reply)

Subject Line Options

1. Re: territory coverage at [COMPANY_NAME] (reply thread — recommended)
2. [FIRST_NAME] – last note on this (+ a quick offer)
3. 15 minutes to show you what [COMPANY_NAME]'s territory map could look
4. Closing the loop – FirstKnock for [COMPANY_NAME]

Recommended:Option 1 for reply thread continuity. Option 3 for fresh thread — highest curiosity pull.

EMAIL BODY:

Hi [FIRST_NAME],

Last note — I don’t want to be a pest (no pun intended for the pest control folks).

FirstKnock was built specifically for [INDUSTRY] teams like [COMPANY_NAME]: real-time GPS territory balancing, live lead logging that works offline, and built-in compliance tracking for local canvassing ordinances.

Owners using it typically see reps close 15–20% more doors per day — just from eliminating overlap and cutting drive time.

We’re onboarding a limited number of [INDUSTRY] operators this month. If you want to see what

[COMPANY_NAME]'s territory map looks like in 15 minutes, grab a slot here: [CALENDLY_LINK]

Or just reply — happy to answer questions first.

Word count: ~95 words Tone: Warm, direct, low-pressure close Urgency element: "Limited number of [INDUSTRY] operators this month" — scarcity without being fake CTA type: Dual CTA — book demo link OR reply with questions (reduces friction) Expected response triggers: Demo booking, pricing question, "tell me more," or "not right now but follow up in Q3"

VA/AI Agent Note: Replace [CALENDLY_LINK] with the actual FirstKnock demo booking URL. Customize the industry-specific parenthetical joke ("no pun intended for the pest control folks") — remove or adapt for solar/roofing/telecom/HVAC audiences.
